New York World, No. 31, says:

"Few people are aware of the enormous business transacted by Mr. S. Bolton, diamond expert of Union Square, corner 14th and Bowery. Entering his magnificent store, you are struck by the variety of his collection, ranging from the commonest articles of household jewelry and European novelties. Our reporter was shown a diamond bracelet which cost $10,000, and a diamond necklace for $10,000 was sold and shipped to a London firm, and a pair of diamond ear-rings to the largest jewelry concern in San Francisco."
